

M/V Spree Technical Diving Expeditions

Join our expeditions to the deep wrecks of Tortugas Bank and the Florida Coast.

The Florida Keys are littered with hundreds of wrecks. Some succumbed to weather, others to war. Still more have come to rest on the bottom at the hands of our own Navy, and a few as intentional artificial reefs.

The deep wrecks around the tip of the Florida Keys offer spectacular diversity of vessels, history and wildlife in the warm, clear waters of south Florida.

Divers Richie Kohler and Richard Mork cruise the German U-boat U-2513

The M/V Spree runs multi-day charters to the deep wrecks of Tortugas Bank and the Florida Keys. Charter prices include all meals, drinks (except liquor), diving, and breathing gasses except helium.

The M/V Spree is rebreather friendly. We stock sorb and ExtendAir cartridges, have rental doubles, stages, and rebreather cylinders. Please order ahead so we can be sure to meet your needs.

For more detailed information, please review the Technical Diving FAQ's

For more about accommodations aboard the M/V Spree, video and photo tours are available online on the M/V Spree Info tab http://www.spreeexpeditions.com/boat_info.asp

So whether it's the history or the incredible diversity of life that draws you to wrecks, the Dry Tortugas and the Florida Keys have lots to offer.